ROLL & HILL LAUNCHES NEW FURNITURE BY POST COMPANY

Brooklyn-based lighting and furniture company, Roll & Hill, today launched a new collection of furniture designed by Post Company, a creative studio. This is R&H's first collaboration with Post Company. "Post Company was a natural fit with Roll & Hill," said CEO, Jason Miller, "Their work has a straightforwardness and honesty that I really admire."

Post Company, also based in Brooklyn, is a collection of architects, interior designers, and other creatives known for projects such as Scribner's Catskill Lodge and The Lake House on Canandaigua. This furniture was originally designed for INNESS, a 225-acre hotel, restaurant and semi-private country club in the Hudson Valley founded by restaurateur and designer, Taavo Somer. The pieces are grounded in the foundational concepts of utility, and clarity of construction. They are both physically and visually solid with simple, unfussy joinery. They are an ode to a simple way of living.

“We drew our inspiration from the rural landscape of the Hudson Valley, and the values of simplicity, humility, and solitude the landscape inspires,” says Jou-Yie Chou, a partner of Post Company.

The collection currently includes five pieces – the Chamber side table, the Grange bench (in two sizes, 48” and 60”), and the Chapter table (available in both 50” and 60”). Grange and Chamber are available in hard maple, black walnut, and white oak. Chapter is available in hard maple and black walnut. Prices range from $2,160 - $8,950.
